

Stocks that are assigned "great white" status are speculative and fall into the high risk category. While they can provide the catch of the year, sometimes they have a nasty bite. Most of our great whites are junior miners and explorers in the gold sector. As we remain positive on the outlook for gold, we did not sell any stocks within this category during the year. Many of our great whites are performing solidly, and we may look to book some profits in the coming year.
